

Paul Renteurs

Year of Call: 2013

020 7353 5324

Paul Renteurs joined chambers in 2014. Whilst specialising in criminal defence and prosecution, professional discipline, and coroners' inquests, Paul's practice encompasses work in the fields of occupational disease and general civil litigation.

Paul has gained a wealth of experience in the Crown Court, Disciplinary Tribunals and Coroners' Courts, and has acted for a wide range of individual and corporate clients in a variety of litigious and regulatory settings.

Criminal Defence

Paul has a burgeoning criminal practice, predominantly defending and prosecuting in the Crown Court. He represents clients at Crown Court trials and committals for sentence for a range of offences including causing grievous bodily harm with intent, the supply of class A drugs, theft offences, fraud and money laundering. Paul also has a great deal of experience representing clients in a range of matters at the Youth and Magistrates Courts.

As an advocate, the calm, clear and confident style in which he presents his clients' cases, both in his jury advocacy and submissions made before judges and magistrates, has been the subject of comments made by judges and clients alike.

Paul has assisted other members of chambers with presentation of lectures and publications on issues of bribery, corruption, cartels and other white collar and financial crime, and regulation.

Cases

R v Roy Stannard

Paul was led by Michael Hayton QC representing an elderly man facing historic allegations of child cruelty and sexual assault made by a number of his step-children. The Defendant was acquitted of counts relating to the sexual assault of one of the complainants, but was convicted of a number of other counts.

R v Brian Thompson

Paul was led by Orlando Pownall QC representing a man accused of involvement in a nationwide conspiracy to supply Heroin. The conspiracy involved the shipping of large quantities of heroin out of Liverpool, to drug suppliers in Scotland, Wales and South West England. The Defendant was acquitted. In the weeks following the acquittal, the Crown offered no evidence against one of the alleged co-conspirators, represented by Jonathan LaidLaw QC and Chris Ware, who was accused of playing a leading role in the conspiracy.

R v Luke Reeves

Paul represented a young man accused of causing grievous bodily with intent by biting the top of another man's ear off in a nightclub. The client was acquitted of causing grievous bodily harm with intent, and convicted of the lesser offence of inflicting grievous bodily harm. Paul represented the client at his sentencing hearing, at which he received a suspended sentence.

R v Angela Thomson

Paul represented a woman accused of assaulting a police constable in execution of his duty and of causing harassment alarm or distress. The alleged assault was said to consist of choking a special constable. Paul cross examined four special constables who gave evidence for the crown. The client was acquitted of the assault charge, and convicted of the public order matter. The client received a conditional discharge.

Professional Discipline

Paul regularly undertakes instructions to represent both individuals and professional regulatory bodies before a variety of regulatory tribunals. His practice includes cases before the various medical regulatory bodies, the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants, and the National College for Teaching and Leadership.

Paul was recently instructed by the Nursing and Midwifery Counsel to carry out the cross examination of a complainant who made allegations of sexual assault against a registrant who was representing himself in fitness to practice proceedings.

The Professional Standards Authority recently instructed Paul to carry out a review of regulatory determinations. This involved reviewing determinations of various health and social care regulators following fitness to practise proceedings in order to assess whether those determinations were unduly lenient.

Paul has previously sat as a Panel Secretary for the Nursing and Midwifery Council. In this role Paul was required to sit in on Panel deliberations and draft final determinations.

Inquests & Public Inquiries

Paul has developed a strong practice in Coroners' inquests, particularly those concerning deaths of children and deaths in custody. His experience includes representing individual medical professionals and medical practices who find themselves identified as interested persons, as well as families of the deceased. Whether making submissions to a coroner as to the proper scope of an inquest, or putting questions to witnesses, including expert witnesses, Paul's professional, but personable and considerate manner enables him to effectively represent the varying concerns of a range of different clients.

Recently, Paul represented a primary care practice in a case concerning the death of a fourteen-year-old girl from a severe asthma attack. Paul successfully resisted submissions by Queens' Counsel acting for the family of the deceased, inviting a finding of neglect. The Coroner for South Tyneside gave a brief narrative verdict.

Occupational Disease & Injury

Paul has experience of representing clients in civil negligence claims. He has defended corporate clients, including recently representing contractors for Essex Highways. He is also developing an increasing practice in occupational disease litigation, particularly in cases concerning noise induced hearing loss.

Sports Law

Paul's Sports Law Practice encompasses advising and representing clients across a broad spectrum of different areas, including anti-doping, professional discipline, gambling regulation and player transfer regulations.

During a secondment at UK Anti-Doping, Paul was closely involved in the investigation, charging and case management of a number of alleged anti-doping rule violations by athletes. Paul represented UKAD before the National Anti-Doping Panel in many of these cases. Paul continues to accept instructions from UKAD on a regular basis.

Paul has recently been instructed to supervise the disclosure of material within the Football Association's archives to the Sheldon Review and Operation Hydrant, both concerning allegations sexual abuse by individuals within football.

Recent Cases

FA v Tony Henry

Paul represented the Football Association in proceedings brought before the Regulatory Commission of the FA against former Head of Recruitment at West Ham United, Tony Henry. Mr Henry admitted charges that alleged using improper, insulting and/or abusive words which amounted to an 'aggravated breach' of FA Rules, including, as they did, references to ethnic origin, race, nationality and/or colour. Mr Henry was suspended from all football related activity for a period of twelve months, and was ordered to pay a contribution to the Football Association's costs.

UKAD v Darren McCormack

Paul oversaw the case management, and represented UKAD before the NADP, in a case brought against Darren McCormack, a player for Brechin City FC, concerning the presence of a metabolite of metandienone in the player's system. The defence contended that any violation of the anti-doping rules was not intentional, as, unbeknownst to Mr McCormack, a friend and training partner had added a fat-burning substance containing metandienone to his protein shakes. The panel concluded that the anti-doping rule violation was intentional, and Mr McCormack was banned for four years.

UKAD v Robbie Turley

Paul drafted written submissions for UKAD, and represented it before the NADP, in a case brought against Robbie Turley, a boxer, concerning the presence of furosemide in Mr Turley's system. Queen's Counsel representing Mr Turley submitted that he bore no significant fault or negligence for the presence of furosemide in his system, because he unwittingly took furosemide tablets belonging to his grandfather, and that he should therefore receive a sanction ranging from no ban to two years. The panel found that there was no significant fault or negligence, but banned Mr Turley for one year.
