

Sarah Przybylska

The complete package: devastatingly efficient and effective."
Legal 500 2019

Year of Call: 2006

020 7353 5324

Sarah Przybylska's work encompasses advice and advocacy across professional discipline, fraud, crime, and public law. She is instructed as leading counsel and as junior to Queen's Counsel, as well as to act alone. She has a reputation for excellent advocacy backed up by careful preparation and a keen intellect. She is currently being monitored for appointment as Treasury Counsel.

Sarah has recently lectured on private prosecutions, the use of hearsay in professional discipline proceedings, and recent developments in confiscation.

She is an accredited advocacy trainer and pupil supervisor and has provided advocacy and courtroom training to solicitors and police officers.

Sarah accepts Direct Access instructions.

Cases

- Advising (with Jonathan Laidlaw QC) the Bank of England in connection with its investigation into the role of Bank officials in relation to issues arising from the 2008 banking crisis;
- Advising a major investment company on the merits of a private prosecution against a former client following misrepresentations made in civil proceedings;
- Defending multi-million pound allegations of conspiracy to defraud and breach of duty made against a company's financial and legal advisers.

Criminal Defence

Sarah is regularly instructed alone to defend in cases of fraud, drug trafficking and rape. She has recently been led in cases including allegations of murder, cocaine importation and human trafficking.

- She has defended in cases of significant complexity requiring careful handling of both clients and witnesses.
- Her written advocacy is first rate; her 'elegant' and 'economical' drafting has been recognised by the Court of Appeal.
- She is particularly sought-after in cases where complex disclosure issues are likely to arise owing to the very extensive experience she has gained from her prosecution work.

Cases

R v HD The defendant was the partner of a man who orchestrated a series of burglaries of high-end jewellers. After a lengthy surveillance operation she was charged with conspiracy to handle stolen goods and proceeds of crime offences. R v KS The defendant was prosecuted for joint enterprise murder arising from a gang-related stabbing over a drug debt. R v JU Represented the lead defendant in a multi-handed case of sex trafficking and repeated rape of a thirteen-year-old girl. R v AF Represented a woman charged with perjury and perverting the course of justice after allegedly lying on oath in a murder trial to protect a relative. R v TF Represented a child prostitute charged with inciting child prostitution after encouraging a friend to come and work with her at the behest of her pimp. Indictment stayed for abuse of process.

Public Prosecution

Sarah is currently being monitored for appointment as Treasury Counsel. She is a grade 4 advocate and is appointed to the serious crime group panel, terrorism panel and rape panel. She is instructed as leading counsel and as junior to Queen's Counsel, as well as acting alone.

Her prosecution practice is focussed upon serious, complex, organised and sensitive crime. She is regularly instructed in a range of cases which include the prosecution of defendants for murder, people trafficking, fraud firearms, drug importation and rape.

Sarah is regularly instructed in multi-defendant and multi-offence cases, often prosecuting Organised Crime Networks (OCNs), following a proactive investigation. Sarah is familiar with the investigative techniques deployed by specialist police teams and is adept at dealing with surveillance evidence, telephone data, cell site and attribution, complex expert and forensic evidence, the obtaining and use of evidence from abroad, bad character evidence in the context of gang prosecutions and otherwise.

Given the nature of her practice, Sarah has advised upon and routinely deals with extremely sensitive disclosure issues. She has particular expertise in PII and the handling of sensitive material relating to investigative techniques and third party disclosure issues. Sarah is security cleared.

Sarah has also prosecuted on behalf of the Specialist Fraud Division and other CPS CCUs in matters relating to VAT and tax fraud (see Business Crime Section) and is experienced in dealing with matters relating to Proceeds of Crime and confiscation, recently advising the CPS East of England Proceeds of Crime Team in relation to a restraint issue.

Sarah represents the CPS in the Court of Appeal, acting in her own cases, for the Attorney General and on discrete instructions from the Appeals Unit. She appeared, for example, in an appeal involving difficult issues of law in the context of ancillary orders in a sensitive sex case.

R v Suchy & Others (Operation Svanetia)

The four defendants ran a large-scale international operation trafficking women from Eastern Europe to the UK for the purposes of exploitation. The case arose from a joint investigation between the Metropolitan Police and the Slovakian authorities and involved the use of evidence obtained abroad (led junior, instructed by London SCU).

R v Newmarch

Prosecuted a man for murder; a defence of 'loss of control' manslaughter failed (led junior, instructed by Homicide).

R v T

Prosecuted a woman for historic sex offences against a neighbour's daughter (junior alone, instructed by London RASSO).

Private Prosecution

Sarah is instructed by individuals and corporate clients to advise on the merits of private prosecutions and regularly lectures on the subject.

- Her 'succinct and effective' written advocacy makes her an obvious choice for drafting persuasive submissions to secure a summons.
- Her public prosecution experience is invaluable in drafting appropriate disclosure protocols for use in private prosecutions.

- She has a detailed knowledge of prosecution policy and procedure.

Cases

Project X Detail Advising an international investment company on the prospects of pursuing a private prosecution against a former client following misrepresentations made by them in civil proceedings. Project Y Detail Advising on the prospects of a private prosecution for fraud in the context of a dispute between construction companies.

Project Z Advising a high-net-worth individual on the possibility of pursuing a private prosecution following a civil settlement.

Criminal Regulatory

Sarah has experience in a wide range of quasi-criminal areas.

- She is instructed in health and safety litigation, including fatality cases, where her ability to assimilate large volumes of material has proved invaluable. She has applied her academic prowess and the tactical awareness forged in her prosecution practice to good effect.
- She has a strong advisory practice, often dealing with confidential matters of the utmost sensitivity. She has recently advised private clients on their potential exposure in areas including corporate fraud, Advertising Standards Authority investigations, overseas mercenary activities, the obligations of landlords of houses in multiple occupancy, and the reading of employees' private emails.

Cases

R v Osborne Prosecution of Darren Osborne who drove a van into a group of people outside the Muslim Welfare House in Finsbury Park last June, killing Makram Ali, 51, and injuring many others. Osborne was sentenced to life with a minimum term of 43 years following his convictions for murder and attempted murder. R v Rooftop Rooms Prosecuted a company, its directors and the site foreman for manslaughter and health and safety offences following the death of an apprentice. Project A Advised a client who was subject to an Interpol Red Notice following the institution of a politically motivated prosecution in their home country. The Red Notice was removed. Project Q Advised a high-profile couple on entering into a surrogacy arrangement overseas.

Inquests & Public Inquiries

Sarah is regularly instructed in coronial proceedings for both professionals and companies. She has appeared in major inquests including the 7/7 inquest and was instructed to represent the Attorney General of Jersey in the Independent Jersey Care Inquiry. Her sensitive and user-friendly approach has won the praise of solicitors and the confidence of the professionals she represents.

Represented the interests of the Attorney General and current and former Law Officers in the Inquiry into the alleged abuse of children in state care in Jersey.

Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse

Advised a national charity on disclosure and provision of evidence to the Inquiry.

Inquest into the death of X

Represented a doctor who supplied controlled drugs to a friend who then choked to death. Finding of death by misadventure.

Inquest into the death of Y

Represented a GP who treated an elderly woman who died in circumstances suggestive of neglect. Narrative finding with no criticism of the doctor.

Inquest into the death of Q

Represented a dentist whose patient bled to death following an extraction. Narrative finding with no criticism of the dentist.

Professional Discipline

Sarah has been ranked by the professional directories as a leading barrister in this field since she was six years' call.

- Sarah has an extensive and varied practice in professional regulation, representing individuals from farriers to sea captains
- She represents healthcare professionals who face proceedings brought by their regulators. She represents such clients on appeal and in related proceedings in the criminal and coroner's courts.
- She also acts for a number of healthcare regulators and has considerable experience supervising and coordinating complex investigations (including a number of cases arising from the closure of the Winterbourne View Care Home).
- She has an excellent track record in drafting successful written representations to case examiners on discontinuance of charges
- She has a developing practice in sports regulation. She has ridden since childhood and married into a farming family, which has led to a particular interest in equestrian and veterinary matters, and those touching on rural affairs more generally.

Oil Companies International Marine Forum v Captain PS

Represented a sea captain and accredited vessel inspector accused of breaching OCIMF rules on the inspection of oil container ships. Panel found no case to answer on the facts.

General Dental Council v M

Represented a dentist accused of serious failings in relation to the treatment of 25 patients over 15 years. Panel found no case to answer on the facts in relation to all but record-keeping charges, in relation to which no impairment was found.

General Medical Council v P

Represented a doctor accused of misconduct in relation to behaviour in his private life, which had no bearing on his professional activities nor did it require proceedings in the public interest. Case closed with no action following submissions to the case examiners.

British Horseracing Authority v M

Represented a trainer accused of deliberately racing a horse which had been operated on to numb a foot permanently. Limited factual findings made against the trainer leading to an unusually short period of disqualification.

General Medical Council v O

Successfully appealed the GMC's decision to refused registration of a foreign surgeon suspected of falsifying documents in support of his application.

General Dental Council v P

Represented a dentist accused of dishonesty and clinical failings. Dishonesty charges dismissed; Panel found no misconduct in relation to the remaining charges.

Sports Law

Sarah advises and represents clients in relation to a range of sporting matters. She has a particular interest in equine sport and has a good understanding of specialist equine veterinary matters, having represented clients at the British Horseracing Authority, the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons and the Farriers' Registration Council. She has advised on the de-nerving of racehorses and alleged anti-doping. Sarah's demonstrable expertise in disciplinary matters and her detailed knowledge of the criminal disclosure regime make her a natural choice for sporting disciplinary matters and areas of crossover between sports and criminal law.
